

Table is launched!

Over the past 2 years we have been developing a resource to help form and train new missional communities. Called Table, it's a series of conversation sheets that groups meet round, perhaps with a meal, to discuss and help shape their life and mission together. Table is now available! And people all over the UK have been coming on our taster events to look at its potential.

"I love the table cloths and can imagine using both the online version and the hard copy. You've done a great job of producing something that has enough content to stimulate, but is open and light enough for it to be used in a lot of different contexts and enable people to explore a breadth of ideas. Well done."

Steve Aisthorpe, Mission Development Worker, Church of Scotland

You can find out more about Table here and buy the physical copy here.

We'll also be running 2 sessions in the coming months for anyone wanting to explore using the online version of Table. The first free session is a taster. The second is a facilitator training event for those wanting to facilitate Table online. This latter event give people access to all the digital resources of Table.
