Webinars on Science and Faith

The Faraday Institute will be running a 2-day workshop on faith and science in January 2021, designed for church leaders, both lay and ordained, and those in training. Participants will explore a wide range of science and faith issues and think about their relevance in the context of the local church.

The workshop will be held 8-9 January 2021, as an online Zoom meeting. It will cost £50 (£30 for those training for ministry). For more details, see faraday.institute/churchleadersworkshop.

In November 2020 the Woolf Institute and the Faraday Institute for Science and Religion are partnering in 2 live webinars on the subject Conference on Climate Change and Religion: Politics, Perceptions and Radical Potentials. These events will bring together academics, religious leaders and grassroots activists to discuss the present and future of religious groups' action to combat the climate crisis. For up to date information visit faraday.institute/climatechange.

This academic year, Faraday Institute Research Seminars will be online, making them accessible to all who are interested, wherever they may be. This term's seminars are:

13th October: 'Physics and Metaphysics in Leibniz' with Prof Maria Rosa Antognazza [King's College, London]

27th October: 'Religion, Evolution and the Social Brain' with Prof Robin Dunbar [Oxford University]

10th November: 'Experimental Psychology of Religion' with Dr Jonathan Jong [Oxford University]

24th November: 'The Naturalistic Case for Free Will' Prof. Christian List [London School of Economics]

The seminars will be held online as Zoom Webinars at 1pm UK time. They are free and open to all.
